The Hyde Park Bank and Out-of-State Loans

At a meeting at Montpelier, October 30, the Farmers' Club listened to a speech by Hon. John H. Senter, who volunteered for the edification of the club this statement:

'The Hyde Park Bank says it does not loan outside of Vermont, but it deposits money outside the

So much has been said in regard to the attitude of the Hyde Park Bank-some truthful, some otherwise-that perhaps an authoritative statement may interest our readers. The bank makes this broad sate-

That, aside from funds deposited on call in New York or Boston, this bank has never loaned a dollar since its organization except on Vermont security or on paper guaranteed by a first-class Vermont name or names. It does not decline to receive out-of-state collateral if it believes the home name is good.

It makes every effort to place its idle, or so-called "call money" with Vermont banks rather than out-ofstate banks; but every bank, so far as we ever knew, keeps a part of its idle money in those reserve cities authorized by Section 4659 of the Vermont Statutes. But this bank has never made deposits West or South even under this statute, but confined them to cities in New England and New York.

It has been the policy of the Hyde Park Savings Bank always to keep financially strong so that it might at any time respond to any call upon it by any Vermonter, and it has today on hand and on deposit "on call" in Boston and New York and in loans to Vermont banks $280,273.37.

Within the last 90 days this bank has said to practically every savings bank in Vermont: "We prefer to keep our deposits in Vermont rather than in New York and Boston banks, and if you can use the money of this bank at 4 per cent, we shall be glad to place it with you. From the suggestion of Mr. Senter the inference could be fairly drawn that the Hyde Park Bank was indirectly loaning money outside the state through this practice of making deposits outside the state. What else can he mean when he uses the word "but" as he does? We repeat this quotation:

The Hyde Park Bank says it does not loan outside of Vermont, but it deposits money outside of the state.

The bank has not had a deposit out of the state for many years, if at all, that paid more than 4 1-2 per cent interest; and the suggestion that it was in this way getting around or avoiding its idea of making loans outside the state is entirely gratuitous.

The Hyde Park Bank courts investigation by everybody, whether they are interested as depositors or otherwise; and the bank is more than pleased that Mr. Senter has given it an opportunity to bring to the public's notice the fact-for it probably is a fact—that the Hyde Park Bank carries a larger percentage of its assets "on call," and where it can put its hand upon them at a moment's notice, than any other bank in the state. In no other way could this bank be so powerful a factor in the financial affairs of the state.

In no other way could it be prepared to respond to all calls, large or small, not only from individuals but from its neighbor Vermont banks. There are very few banks in Vermont that do not understand that if in need of funds to take care of their customers they can come to the Hyde Park Bank and will probably get the money.

This may not always be true; but there has not been a day in the last four years when the Hyde Park Bank has not been in condition to respond, and has responded, to every call of this kind from its neighbor banks.

It costs the bank something in loss of interest to do this, for there hasn't been a time for years that it could not send the same money West and get from 6 to 8 per cent. But it is entirely satisfied and content to do business as it is now doing, because its phenomenal growth shows that its action is appreciated by the good people of Vermont.

Its average deposits have exceeded its withdrawals for every day in the last five years, barring Sundays and holidays, $900 per

The Bank returns its thanks to Mr. Senter for giving this opportunity through the columns of the News and Citizen to state its position fully and explicitly.-[News and Citizen.

The Special Town Meeting.

special town meeting was held A special town meeting was held Monday forenoon at 10 o'clock, P. H. Rutter, moderator for the year, called the meeting to order, and the clerk, C. W. Cutler, read the warrant, The first article was to see if the town would lengthen the school year to 36 weeks. After some discussion and explanation by the school directors it was voted to by the school directors it was voted to instruct the directors to arrange for a 36 weeks' school year. It was voted to dismiss the second article, to see if the town would instruct the school directors to maintain a school in district No. 3, which places the responsibility back on the school directors. Many of the citizens have a feeling that such a matter should be settled by the voters of that particular district.

The third article called for action by the town on the matter of purchasing land for the purpose of changing the sanitary conditions at the village school-house. It was voted that the school dihouse, it was voted that the school di-rectors and the selectmen constitute a committee to make such a purchase. Article four was to see if the town would vote to build a foot bridge over the West river near the farm of Clarence Truesdell. While there was much to be said in favor of such a bridge, there were serious difficulties to overcome. It was voted to refer the overcome, it was voted to refer the matter to the selectmen for investiga-tion, report to be made at the annual meeting in March.

Article five was to see if the town would raise additional money for the support of the schools made necessary by the lengthening of the school year. It was voted to instruct the selectmen to borrow money if necessary to finish out the school year, and the article was dismissed.

There being no other business the meeting was adjourned at 11.30 An interesting feature of the town meeting was the presence of the women, who came out in great numbers. It was expected that opposition would develop to some of the measures proposed, and great interest was manifest-ed by the mothers who have children in the schools, it furnished an excel-lent ilustration of the kind of town meeting we might expect if the women could vote, and would attend the meet-ings. It was as orderly and harmonious, no difference of opinion developing in regard to any of the questions before the meeting excepting that referring to district No. 3.

Mrs. Newell Jenison.

Mrs. Mabel E. Jenison, wife of Newell Jenison of this town, died in the home of her mother, Mrs. Stephen Foster, in Newfane on Thursday, Nov. 14th. Mabel Elizabeth McCoy was born in Shafts-bury June 4, 1885, and was therefore 27 years old last June. She was the daugh ter of William and Lona (Purdy) Mc Coy. Her parents moved to Dover while she was a small child. Her girlhood days were spent in that town, where she attended the public schools. With the exception of a few years when she lived n Montreal, Canada, her life was spent n Windham county. She was married to Newell Jenison of this town April 9, 1909. Not long after her marriage she was seized with violent hemorrhages of the lungs, and it was soon discovered that she was a victim of the dread disease, tuberculosis. She possesed great vitality and made a heroic fight for life, but the inevitable was only a question of time. She was a great sufferer, but always bore her trials with fortitude and cheerfulness. She was naturally of a bright and active temperament and had many friends who mourn her death.

The funeral service was held on Sunday in the home of her mother, Mrs. Stephen Foster, in Newfane, Rev. Joseph McKean officiated and Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Wright of Newfane sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "Some Day We'll Understead." "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "Some Day We'll Understand." The burial was in the Jenison family lot in Oakwood cemetery. Besides her husband, she leaves her mother, Mrs. Stephen Foster, and five sisters, Mrs. R. W. Snyder, Mrs. Daniel McCarty and Mrs. Frank Lawrence of Townshend, Mrs. Henry Nidso of Manchester and Mrs. Minnie Cobb of Bernardston, also three brothers, Joseph McCoy of Montreal, William of Fitchburg and Charles of Brattle-boro.

Plastergon is the name of this new wall board and it is so easy to see its economy and superiority that the demand throughout the country is tremendous. It takes the place of lath and plaster in the building of new houses of every kind, and for remodeling rooms in old homes nothing like it has ever been seen before. Think of a wall board that never breaks, cracks or wears out; that anyone can put on; and once on it stays on forever with never any cost for Another remarkable thing about Plas-tergon Wall Board is that it resists heat and cold. That means, of course, that the rooms will be cooler in summe and warmer in winter, and that's worth considering with the price of coal where it will be the coming winter.

Plastergon comes in panels just the proper size to suit any requirements and designed to suit any room in the house. It is extensively used for partition for offices and to make extra rooms anywhere, because of its cheapness, durability and the quickness with which it can be put up.

Not for a Million

Of course not! Yet how careless you are in your treatment of those million dollar eyes.

You abuse them, overwork them, don't give them the support which they need badly. Support? Yes-

The December Woman's Home Compan

The December Woman's Home Com-The December Woman's Home Companion contains a remarkable account of the birth of Christ, written by Washington Gladden. It is a simple, straight narrative—interesting and full of an extraordiany sense of wonder. Reading it is like reading about Lincoln or any other great real figure in history.
